Give your child the Power to Read!

Children who read do better in school. So, help your child be a Super reader.

- Get your child a library card at your local public library. It's free!
- Sign your child up for Summer Reading at the local public library and enjoy free programs with fun activities, storytelling, reading contests, crafts and more.
- Read with your child every day. Take advantage of "waiting" time to share books: on trips, at the doctor's office, in line at the grocery store.
- Take a break from video games and sit and relax with a book.
- Read on your own and talk to your child about what you're reading.
- Families who share reading experiences raise children who read well.
- Visit the library every week and bring the whole family.
- Need books in languages other than English? Ask a librarian!
- Use the closed captioning during TV shows so children see the words as they hear them.
- Keep a list on the refrigerator of the books everyone has read.

Need Books?

Visit a Book Box!

As part of the community's interest in encouraging children to read, free book boxes have been set up at locations around the city. These re-purposed newspaper vending boxes hold books that children may borrow. Students can return the borrowed book, or donate gently-used books of their own. The boxes are located outdoors, and can be accessed at any time, regardless of whether the school is open.

Book boxes are located at each elementary school in the Auburn Enlarged City School District (at the front entrance to the school, except for the Seward Book Box, which is located at the side entrance facing Metcalf Drive). There is also one located in front of the education building of Westminster Presbyterian Church, adjacent to the YMCA.
